WALK ON • Looking for an alternative to toxic, off-gassing floor coverings? At interior designer and eco-style maven Nicole Goldman's Cape Cod showroom, g Green Design Center, which offers the latest in green building supplies, flooring picks include Eco-Terr, terrazzo slabs made from 75 to 80 percent postconsumer concrete, glass, and stone, and Cor-Terra, a renewable and recyclable cork and rubber flooring manufactured by Capri. Both come in a rainbow of colors and can earn LEED credits. g Green Design Center, Mashpee Commons, Mashpee; 508-477-7988, ggreendesign.com. 20

PULLS • Beach Pebble cabinet hardware by SpectraDÉcor looks like it was plucked from the seashore, but, deceptively, is crafted from 100 percent recycled glass and lead-free pewter. Also made from lead-free pewter and inlaid with cork, a renewable resource, the manufacturer's Fusion line, below, is easy on the eyes and on the planet. Available through G Green Design Center; 508-477-7988; spectradecor.com.

COUNTERTOPS • IceStone looks like high-end stone and is just as sturdy, but is made from recycled glass and cement. Free from harmful VOCs (volatile organic compounds), the material has earned Cradle-to-Cradle status, one of the most respected third-party certifications around. It comes in a spectrum of colors and is perfect for countertops, backsplashes, vanities, and shower walls. Available through G Green Design Center; 508-477-7988; icestone.biz.
