G GREEN DESIGN CENTER

These days everyone is looking for ways to reduce their carbon footprint, but sometimes it's tough to know where to get started. G Green Design Center in Mashpee Commons is a good place for those looking for direction and solutions. The store offers a full array of products and services to make your home more eco-friendly. Home builders and remodelers can find energy-efficient lighting fixtures, non-toxic paints, and flooring and cabinetry made of sustainable materials and recycled products. Even if your project is not any more involved than keeping your existing home cleaner and greener, you can find non-toxic laundry detergents, bio-degradable trash bags, organic spa products and compact fluorescent light bulbs. According to owner Nicole Goldman, even restaurants and catering services are going green by stocking up on sugar cane fiber plates and cups and utensils made of corn starch. Soon you'll even be able to get advice on socially-responsible investing when Progressive Asset Management sets up shop there.
